Not illustrated. 1832 Excerpt: .as dense as that of the parrellel river Disang, and the country between the two at that time was said to be an inhospitable tract of rank jungle, without a vestige of inhabitants. The fort of Jypur I found so much overgrown with high grass jungle, that I must have passed it unawares, had not my guide pointed it out. It is a square of three hundred and fifty yards, with a dry ditch of six feet deep, the earth from which is thrown up in the form of a wall or bank six feet high. My next employment was a survey of the river Dikho, which was made under more favorable circumstances for arriving at accuracy, as the distance by the bund road both to Koivarpara and to Gfiergong was surveyed, and hills determined in position from this base served to correct the remaining portion, but here as in the Disang, after arriving within a certain distance of the hills, I found it impossible to proceed: it is similar in character to the before named rivers. As my object is to give a connected view of the several steps of our discoveries, I must not omit to mention Lieutenant Jones s Journal of his March from Rangpur with the detachment, which I found at Borhdth on my arrival there. The Journal was noticed in the Government Gazette of 23d of June, and its contents though interesting, scarcely require repetition, as they chiefly describe the embarrassments...
