Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Educational Progress in the South, 1907: A Review of Five Years, Field Reports of the Southern Education Board The Miller School of Virginia has stood as a most impressive Object lesson in this kind of education, and the late Captain Vawter, for many years its honored head, was an earnest apostle of industrial training as an essential to the best system of public schools. In complete accord with this has been the influence spread abroad in each State by the Agricultural and Mechanical Colleges; these have taught the dignity of the trades and of the practical sciences as affording an intellectual discipline quite as effective in its way as that of literature and metaphysics. Nor can we leave out of view the powerful influence of General Armstrong and of the great school at Hampton, which has steadily held to the philosophy of learning by doing. Of similar influence, too, has been the work of Dr. Knapp in teaching the farmers of Texas and Louisiana the latent possibilities of wealth and power in an intelligent cultivation of the soil. Last year's report from Virginia says: 104 books on agriculture have been introduced into both primary and high schools.
